

Nemo "Invisible" Self-Reducing

A New Corset with "Visible" Nemo Bridge

Some women object to the external Nemo Self-Reducing Straps as being "bulky". In fact they are not—quite the contrary. But here's a new Nemo with a new kind of Self-Reducing Straps that are out of sight—"invisible":

No. 342--for Stouts $3.00

Fine white coutil, sizes 21 to 38

The "invisible" Straps are made of a series of narrow tapes, sewed to inside of corset and hooked to front steels. They support and reduce the figure perfectly and comfortably.

The new "visible" bridge pivots on highest point of abdomen. Lower end of corset draws in, upper part goes out. This insures support, free breathing space and no over-pressure.

INVISIBLE SELF-REDUCING

This distinct corset novelty merits close study. Introductory Sale now in progress here.

KANSAS CITY FEDS ARE IN BAD SHAPE

Whoever Gets the Kawfeds Will Not Have a Pennant Winner on Their Hands.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Kansas City, March 12.—Which city gets the Kansas City Federal team, one thing is certain: That is that the one thus favored is not going to get a pennant winner—or so it looks from this early angle. On paper the Kawfeds or Newfeds are easily the weakest aggregation in Gilmore's circuit. A whole lot of belting seems necessary before the club can expect to attain even a first division berth. With the exception of Indianapolis, Kansas City is the only club that Gilmore has not strengthened by his raiding the majors of their stars during the winter months.

George Stovall will do the managing again this season unless an eleventh hour change is made. He hasn't an imposing looking array of talent to start on. He has six of his old pitchers, but Packard, Johnson, Harris, Stone, Culp and Adams. Packard was the most consistent performer last season and is probably the best pitcher left over to him this season. Culp, Johnson, the Whitehead Indian, if he is in shape, will stand a lot of work and do it in a creditable manner. Stovall was tied up so long by injuries after he jumped the Reds last season that his last season's work can hardly be taken as any criterion. He finished the season with a percentage under .500, but should be better this season if he is in shape. The Chief is not noted for the care he takes of himself. Nick Culp, erstwhile Nap, will be in line. Ben Harris, the big spear in the last season was dying that looked awfully good. Stone and Adams are rather unknown quantities.

Three Catchers. Stovall has three catchers to start with. Ted Easterly, one time White Stocking, will of course be the first string man. He bore the brunt of the receiving last season and was about as good as any in the league. He is a hefty swatman, too. Enzenroth, the young University of Michigan star, will understudy Easterly and back up is George Perring. Stovall himself will undoubtedly take first base again. The team needs him badly, both at bat and covering the bag. George's best enemies cannot but admit that he is a regular first baseman. Bill Bradley, last year's manager of the Kawfeds, is now Kaysee's property, and will take a shot at first base, but his playing days are drawing to an end.

Fair Infield. Kenworthy who played second all last season and ranked among the best in the league, will be back at his post. Johnny Rawlings, who jumped the Reds in mid-season, is expected to take up short, and third will be covered by George's hitting partner, who played all over the infield last season. Perring is a sort of roustabout in the infield and can play any place about as well as another. Stovall has a couple of utility infielders in Clifford Daringer and Clyde Goodwin.

Fred Gilmore, (no relation to Jim) Art Kruger, Cad Cole and Chet Chadbourne form the outfield relay. All of them were with the club last year.

The uncertainty of where the club was located in 1931 undoubtedly influenced the team's inability to strengthen the team. It may be that when the club is disposed of that Gilmore will pull a few players out of his sleeve to bolster it up. One thing certain—it needs it before it can hope to become a pennant contender.

GIANTS WILL BE STRONG IN PITCHER'S BOX AGAIN.

Critics of McGraw's team have pointed out pitching weakness as a reason for last year's failure and this year's uncertain prospects. The acquisition of an experienced and capable pitcher like Eddie Rye, therefore, is a big boost for the Giants. McGraw counts on Tetreau and Perring to win forty or fifty games next summer, and with Mathewson still in the dock, the possibility of Marquard coming back, and a new crop of hurlers coming along, the Giants may make a great race. Perring won eighteen games last season for a league only two or three seasons.

WATCH, SWING AND PRAY, SAYS BODIE.

Look this season for the mighty Seal. Look for each Seal, great, small and otherwise, to pound the ball against the fence often and maybe oftener during the 1932 season.

For Ping Bodie, fence buster, has told her he does and his method is so simple that it would seem anybody could do it. It is a shame to tell it.

During practice a few mornings ago, Ping's first appearance in Seal uniform since the days of his fence busting, he tipped everybody.

"I swing as hard as I can and pray that the ball goes safe," said he. Isn't it simple?

Australian boxing experts believe they have discovered a good hope in Ben Doyle, who weighs 156 pounds. The other day at Sydney he stopped Ed Stordeck, the South African champion.

MORRIS MILLER

Both Griffith and Kilfer say that Maurice Uhler, whom the Reds released to Baltimore, is destined to become a grand ballplayer. Uhler was a victim of friendship, odd as it may appear. For a novice, he was doing very nicely with the Reds, but when Herzog had to pick someone for release he selected Uhler—because Uhler, a Baltimore boy, was his own best friend, and Luck would not stand for the fans to even think that he would show favoritism to his pals.

Larry Lajoie is thrilling the crowds watching the Athletics practice at Jacksonville by his great fielding. Maybe the change from Cleveland will galvanize two or three more years into him, after all.

Bill Donovan does not believe in making a pitcher change his style of delivery. Listen to Billy and see if he does not speak words of wisdom: "There's no use in trying to make every pitcher work the same way," he said. "I've seen a lot of good men ruined because some manager or other wanted them to change their style of delivery. No matter how awkward or wearing a motion may look, if the manager, he should go very slow in trying to teach the pitcher a new way of throwing the ball. There is no one correct pitching style, but if you pin me right down I must admit that I think the man with the side arm motion has the edge on all his rivals."

They are already selling tickets for the opening day, having banquets and otherwise anticipating an enjoyable summer in Federal ranks in Baltimore.

The American league will keep tabs on the games won and record them in the official pitching records. This was not done last season and as a result, there was much disappointment among fans who were anxious to get this line on pitchers.

"Taking ball teams to the extreme south does not always assure a training season. The weather is just as apt to be off color there as it is farther north, and that is what has happened since the Yankees' trip to Gulfport, Miss., and the Yankees at Savannah. Both have struck chilly periods and have been unable to get their share of work."

Sporting News points out, as an evidence of the wonderful control which the late Judge Kavanaugh had over the Southern association, the unseemly scramble for the presidency since his death, although while he was alive there was practically no opposition faction.

J. Weldon Wolfe, the young pitcher of the Athletics, is acting correspondent at the Jacksonville training camp for a Philadelphia paper, and writes real nice pieces.

Howard Drew, the wonderful colored sprinter, will again compete in the annual University of Pennsylvania relay race at Philadelphia, April 23 and 24. He will be accompanied by Kelly, the hurdler. Both are students at the university of Southern California. Drew and Kelly plan to remain in the east until May 1. Drew wants to meet Loomis of Chicago and Meyer of New York in a series of sprint races.

Harry Coveleskie's fine work in 1931 gave the southpaw pitching fraternity so large a boost in Manager Jennings' opinion that "Hughie" has taken a whole flock of them south this season. There used to be a time when the Tigers had to struggle along without any reliable left-handers. From the time Eddie Kilian finished his league usefulness in 1930, until the beginning of 1931, the Junglers didn't have a single southpaw who could be relied on to take his regular turn. Many were called in this period, but none was chosen.

GARAGE MEN WARNED ON A NEW SWINDLING GAME.

Police Chief C. A. Peterson of De Kalb County, Ga., has issued a warrant for a Hebrew named Augustus A. Avery, alias Rumley who has a new fraud method of passing forged checks. Avery drives a runabout car with an Indiana license number 1074 and goes to a garage leaving his car overnight. He orders minor repairs and the next morning in payment offers a good sized check, which the garage always cashes. The check comes back marked with the usual red ink and the auto men are out the money. Avery is said to be operating in this vicinity, stopping in small cities.

FRANKIE NELSON WILL CLASH WITH ANDREWS IN OSHKOSH TONIGHT.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Oshkosh, Wis., March 12.—Frankie Nelson, local lightweight, will meet Freddie Andrews of Milwaukee in a ten-round bout here tonight. The boys will make 135 pounds. The exhibition is over the same route as scheduled. They will bring together Young White of this city, and Dauber Jaeger of Fond du Lac, and Bud Gorman and Kid Howard of Appleton.

"NO DECISION" LAW SAVES TITLE CROWN FOR FREDDIE WELSH

Willie Ritchie Has a Big Shade Over British Champion in Ten Rapid Fire Rounds in New York.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, March 12.—To all intents and purposes Willie Ritchie of California is the champion lightweight boxer of the world. It was a fortunate thing for Freddie Welsh, the title holder, that under the no decision clause of the Frawley boxing law a referee in this state cannot give a decision. If that had been possible the title which Ritchie lost to Welsh in London last year would have gone back to his first owner last night.

Ritchie clearly outclassed Welsh and landed the greater number of clear blows in seven of the ten rounds the boys boxed at Madison Square Garden. Welsh did not have a clear advantage in any round, but he managed to hold the Yankee even in three sessions.

Rapid Fire Battle. It was a rapid fire battle, by long odds the fastest lightweight bout that has been fought in New York this winter. There was never a dull second except when they were locked in the clinches. Blows fell thick and fast with the fury of a hail storm, but despite the shower of punches not a knockdown was scored nor anything approaching one.

Neither man was cut up or bruised, which proved two things—that the defense of both was splendid, the blocking excellent, and the punches light and of rapid fire order. Ritchie landed the hardest punch of the two. He staggered Welsh three times, but on each occasion Welsh was side-stepping to get out of danger.

Ritchie was the aggressor throughout. He kept Welsh on his heels all of the time and forced him around the ring continuously. Willie showed more speed than in any of his previous battles. He kept the Briton to "set." Ritchie took a decided lead in the second and third sessions and maintained it to the end. In the closing rounds, particularly in the seventh, eighth and ninth, Welsh clinched so repeatedly and held on so desperately that some of the ringside box-holders yelled, "You're a fine champion, Welsh. Hold on for your life."

Both were guilty of big hits in the breakaway and refused to break clean. Welsh's one best punch was a long left to the stomach which was rather good rights to the face. Welsh's punches were usually light left jabs. Ritchie's persistent attack and willingness to box from the first bell to the last gained him a clear advantage.

It was close to a $20,000 house that saw the battle. The scale of prices ranged from $1 in the top gallery to $100 in the front row. This is the highest rate of admission charged for any of the bouts this winter. At least thirty-five women were in the house. When Ritchie weighed at 3 p. m. he tipped the scales at 135 pounds, just inside the weight limit. Welsh weighed a half a pound less. At 6 o'clock, when they were again weighed, Ritchie weighed 135½ and Welsh 135½.

UNIQUE EXHIBITION PLANNED BY CLUBS

Exhibitions Relating to Sporting, Traveling and Vacation in Milwaukee Auditorium.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—The Sportsman, Travel and Vacation show, which will be held early in May, is expected to be the most unique exhibition ever housed by the Auditorium.

The Flambeau club will reproduce a wild and picturesque portion of the state geological survey is expected to exhibit a topographical map of Wisconsin, showing all the lakes, rivers and forests.

A portion of the herd of Elk recently shipped from Montana to the state game preserve in Vilas county will be in a forest scene, together with bears, fox and other wild animals. A band of Indians from the Menominee reservation will be encamped in a miniature pine forest, with all their crude implements.

An athletic tournament will be conducted under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic union. A tank, 125 to 30 feet, will be constructed for championship swimming races between the best natators in the middle west. A trap shooting tournament under the auspices of the Milwaukee gun clubs, to which all the gun clubs in the state will be invited, will be conducted in the main hall of the auditorium. There will also be an indoor rifle and pistol tournament and a special target match for members of the national guard.

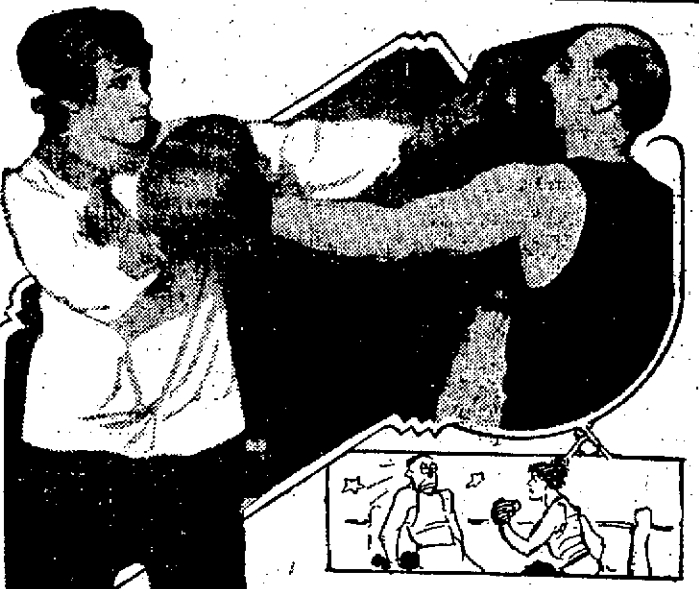

These are only a few of the attractions which have been developed for the show and many others are being planned.

Capons Hatch Eggs.

In Germany capons are used for hatching eggs and raising the chicks. They take better care of the chicks than hens do, even fighting hawks to protect them and running with them much longer.

"WOMANLY ART," THEY MUST CALL IT NOW

Miss Gertrude Bauman and Eddie Toye.

"The womanly art"—they may soon be calling boxing. Anyway, Miss Gertrude Bauman of New York jabbed and banged the "stuffs" out of poor Eddie Toye, her boxing professor and former ring artist, in an exhibition in Gotham last week. Eddie fought hard for the good name of his sex, but at the end of the fourth round Referee Jack Adler announced his defeat. Miss Bauman declared after the bout that her costume consisted of just four garments—shoes, stockings, bloomers and a middie skirt. She didn't wear a corset.

ASPIRANTS BATTLE ELKHORN TONIGHT

Curtis' Men Are Fit for Strenuous Contest That Ends Schedule. —Students Promise to Fill Gym.

The last game of basketball for high school aspirants on their home floor for this season takes place tonight at eight-thirty o'clock, following a preliminary battle between the junior and senior class teams, at seven-thirty.

The Elkhorn team is here and lay great hopes in their versatile center, who whom it is said is Elkhorn's entire team on the floor. Those who have seen this star perform, say he is a dangerous man to turn loose against five others. Rau will meet him in his usual style and whether he can stop him or not, remains to be seen. If he can, then Rau has a pretty good chance of outplaying practically every other center he will meet this year.

TIGERS ARE NO STRONGER THAN THEY WERE LAST YEAR, SAYS HUGH JENNINGS

That Detroit will have no stronger team this year than it had in 1931 is the opinion of Hugh Jennings. The Tiger manager hopes to have better luck, however. He points out that Vitti's health was bad and Daus was out of the game a good deal last year.

"How School Spirit Helps the Players," Captain Stickney. "Our Athletics an Aid to the School," Miss O'Hara. "Selection Boys' Glee Club." "Do Athletics Pay?" A. C. Lamb. "Selection by Orchestra." Songs and Yells.

A MISCHIEVOUS MEASURE.

Thus the Wall Street Journal characterizes the LaFollette shipping bill and then adds:

"Presumably it is regarded as a triumph by labor union leaders that they have driven American ships off the seas, as far as all but the protected coast traffic is concerned. But in the latest surrender to this shortsighted absolutism, a blow is struck even at our coastwise trade. The effect of the LaFollette shipping bill will almost certainly be to drive our lake shipping into Canadian registry."

That Mr. Wilson has signed so mischievous a measure after his projected enthusiasm for restoring the American merchant marine, must remain one of the mysteries of history. The measure enacts what, in effect, are twenty international lawsuits with as many maritime powers having treaties with us. The surplus employees required on our own and even foreign ships are much worse in proportion than the indefensible full train crew laws. The vexatious regulations imposed upon the masters of foreign ships are calculated to keep us in continual hot water with our neighbors. Incidentally, a large amount of freight must certainly be diverted to Canada for shipment across the border.

"As the number of able seamen of three years' experience is laid down not merely for our own vessels, but those of foreign nations clearing from our ports, no wonder that the president have assumed a jurisdiction which has repeatedly been denied by the supreme court. The United States government itself is by this act forced to collect wages for foreign seamen, through the courts. And as if this were not tyranny enough, any walking delegate may hold up indefinitely the sailing of the Lusitania or the Vaterland."

All he has to do is to file an affidavit within six hours of the sailing of a vessel. In order to comply with the terms of the act, the shipmaster must suspend preparations for departure, muster his crew of 600 or 700 men, prove by individual certificate that a fixed majority of them are able seamen, and that an equal majority understand the language of the officers. It is in the power of any mischief-maker to commit this outrage upon a foreign vessel enjoying the hospitality of our ports.

"The mere enforcement of these and other provisions equally preposterous, will lay enormous expense upon the custom house, and absolutely without benefit to American employment. The labor union, in fact, by this measure bid fair to send even our highly protected coastwise traffic to join our defunct deep sea marine. The only alternative is the payment of higher freight rates to our own ships and the foreigners than are paid by any nation in the world."

THE THREE R'S.

Here is a bit of real, genuine sentiment expressed by the Alabama house of representatives which voted to restore Webster's blue-black speller to its former place of honor in the public schools of the state. Consideration of the bill was marked by some expressions of sentiment, a measure of cold logic and much jocularity. Opponents of the measure, however, could not resist the temptation to overdo the devotion for the ancient textbook that disclosed itself down in the hearts of the members.

"This day and generation do not remember the little book with its quaint illustrations. But go back a generation or two and it will be recalled quickly, as it belongs to the era of the quill pen and slate and pencil. The story is told that once while traveling and Daniel Webster, one of America's greatest orators and students was asked if he was the author of Webster's spelling book. He replied: 'I am not, but if I could claim the honor it would be the proudest moment of my life.'

The Webster speller takes one back to the days of the three R's. 'Reading, riting, rithmetic, taught to the rule of a hickory stick.' Back to the old country school house. Back to the days of the past when man rose on their merits, by their own efforts and not as the result of some preferment that was obtained by prestige of parentage.

Alabama has done the world of today a service and the students of its schools that learn from that little old blue-black speller, will be just as good scholars as though their book was of the most modern type and the finest product of the latest fad in 'teaching' the young idea how to shoot." All hail to Webster and his speller.

HAVE YOU NOTICED?

That the man who neglected to keep his walks clean all winter is the first to complain about dusty streets and wake his neighbors in the morning mowing his lawn or burning his grass? That the man who was too tired to help with the housework can play bridge all the afternoon and again in the evening? That the girl who is too tired to help make the beds can dance until the wee small hours without being a bit tired? That the boy who could not empty the ashes or cut the grass can play nine innings of baseball and rough the umpire? That the poorest student in the class-room is the best marksman and roller-skater in the school? That the man who kicks about the high cost of living is usually living with relatives and pays no board? That the man who works hard all day and comes home tired and worn out does not complain even if supper is not ready, while the loafer who has accomplished nothing while he has been loafing about the house watching ball game wants his meals on time? Strange, but true, is it not?

CIVIC NEEDS.

Janesville needs civic pride in every undertaking and concerted action of all interests. There should be no pulling and hauling in various directions when it comes to public welfare. Every element should combine whether it be for the establishment of a baseball team, holding a Fourth of July celebration, conducting a fair or exploiting the city as a whole. If any community is to get ahead it must be by concerted and united action. It is easy enough to criticize a person who is really trying to accomplish something, but how hard it appears to be to aid in the work. The interests of every citizen should be for civic betterment and the one way to do their part in the general proposition is to forget past differences and put a shoulder to the wheel and help boost.

"Put Janesville on the baseball map" is a slogan that appeals to the young men of the city. While the snow of last week somewhat dampened their ardor, still balmy days will come shortly if we are to believe Forecaster Mead, and then everything will be happy.

One should not wonder why Greece and Bulgaria do not plunge headlong into the present. They have had a taste of what war really means and are perfectly willing to accept the general verdict of Sherman.

While the government has made provision to check the consumption of cigars, cigarettes, beer, and whisky, nothing has been done to check up the swear words the law has brought about.

The plan to name a naval strategist whose essential requirement should be that he could make a few ships look like a whole flock to the eyes of the beholders.

Thus far there has been no proposed advance in the price of baseball this summer, so there is still hope in the breasts of the starving American public.

It is feared that General Carranza's inactivity may mean that his typewriter is damaged or his stenographer has gone on a strike.

JUDGE'S PERSUASION ENDS A LEGAL FEUD

Plaintiff and Defendant in Brodhead Damage Suit Leave Court Room Arm in Arm.

Philander J. Smith and George Lyons of Brodhead, plaintiff and defendant respectively in a personal damage suit in circuit court, left the court room arm in arm late yesterday afternoon following a conference with Judge Grimm and their attorneys, at which a satisfactory settlement was secured.

The case was called for trial at three o'clock, the jury was drawn, the opening statements made and the early witnesses called. At five o'clock the court adjourned and a settlement was the last thing which an observer would believe possible under the circumstances. Smith contended that he was injured to the extent of $3,000 when Lyons, driving an automobile, crashed into the rear of his farm wagon on a Brodhead street one day last April. But Judge Grimm was of the opinion that the parties might patch up their differences and he called them into consultation. What transpired behind the closed doors is not given out, but when the plaintiff and defendant emerged they were both smiling and evidently highly elated at the outcome. Judge Grimm wore a pleased expression and the attorneys, Sprague and Jenks for the plaintiff and Oestreich for the defendant, could not help but catch the spirit of good feeling which prevailed.

Find Mielke Negligent. The jury in the damage suit of Paul A. Mielke against the city of Edgerton returned their verdict in the circuit court shortly before five o'clock Thursday afternoon, in which they found the plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence in the accident which he suffered, which precluded his recovery of damages. The special verdict also found that the city was negligent in its care and maintenance of the bridge and sidewalk over Saunders creek, where the plaintiff was hurt.

Both Want Divorce. It was a question of which party wanted a separation worse, husband or wife, in the divorce case of Helen Ullius against William Ullius of Edgerton, which was taken up before Judge Grimm during a lull in court business yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Ullius prayed for a divorce on the ground of cruelty, while her husband also wanted a separation on the similar grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. After testimony was heard the divorce was granted to the husband.

OLIVE OIL

Of late we hear much about Olive Oil and you see many different kinds advertised. As in almost everything else, the moment a thing becomes popular, various brands appear on the market, all claiming to be the best. But watch your Olive Oil, for much on the market is of the very poorest quality.

The cheaper kinds are made from overripe or unripe olives, and these are not fit for either food or medicine.

Our Olive Oil has been tested and is guaranteed pure; besides, we guarantee it to be made from ripe olives and to have the finest flavor possible in Olive Oil.

For medicinal use, as in indigestion, as a tonic for the liver, as a tissue builder in wasting diseases and as a mild laxative, it is most excellent.

For the table, it is a nourishing food one of the best of dressings for salads and for broiling or frying meats and fish in; it is far superior to any other article, being even better than lard or butter.

A Simple Test:—Place a bottle full of Olive Oil in a cold place over night. If genuine, a white, flaky deposit will appear, more or less heavy, according to its purity. This deposit disappears on warming the oil. If no deposit appears, the oil is not genuine.

tors got through and sewed him up they left the sponge inside. Since that time he has been the worst old soak in this man's town.

If a feller stays right on the job he can get a Sunday paper read through by the following Friday evening. Lem Higgins never traveled on a railroad train for fear of accidents so he stayed at home and a chimney fell on him and landed him in the hospital. A feller came along here and tried to get a mavin' pitcher of the town marshal, but the marshal didn't move for three days and the feller went away disgusted.

Clothing and Shoe Section Ready For Business

The Clothing and Shoe Section Completely Ready For Business and the New Styles Are Here.

After several weeks of upheaval throughout the store it gives us great pleasure to announce to our patrons that now the clothing and shoe sections are completely ready to take care of the wants of our patrons. The new spring styles are all here and ready for selection.

The Ready-To-Wear room, in the new section is now completed, but is not yet open for business. Today the floor in this room was covered with a beautiful, rich green velvet carpet that will add greatly to the general pleasing aspect of this particular department.

You Can View a Completely New Stock Here On Our Opening Day

As the opening day approaches enthusiasm grows apace. Not only are the public anxiously awaiting this great event, but the salespeople are ready and anxious to take their places, to demonstrate to the public their ability to give the highest grade of service in supplying the highest grade of merchandise.

The Woman's Rest Room will be furnished probably tomorrow and will be ready on our Opening Day. This added feature will no doubt be equally popular with both Janesville and out-of-town patrons. This room will be equipped solely for the comfort and convenience of our women patrons.

Consider This An Invitation To Attend Our Opening If You Should Not See Our Opening Announcement.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

WHAT HAS HELPED YOU?

A group of us drifted into a conversation the other day about the bits of poetry or wise or beautiful sayings which had helped us the most. Each member had at least one to contribute. Indeed I think there are few people who have not felt the restraining or comforting or inspiring force of some utterance which they have read and stored up in their minds, or rather, hearts.

Sometimes it's from the Bible or Shakespeare; sometimes it's just a sentence from a magazine or a verse from an obscure poet. It isn't always the greatness of the thing, it's just its appeal in each particular case.

Our talk set me to thinking. It was such an interesting and inspiring conversation that I wished my readers friends could gather round the fire with us and chime in. And then I thought, "Why not?"

Why not? Don't you think it would be interesting to have a round-the-fire talk on this subject, reader friends? Tell me the verse or the sentence which has helped you and I'll pass it on. It may help someone else as much. Who knows?

What Some of Us Liked Best.

Just to start the ball a-rolling let me tell you what some of the members of our group contributed.

"The world is too much with us
Late and soon, getting and spending
We lay waste our powers,"—Wordsworth.

(Incidentally I happen to know that this is Mrs. Taft's favorite poem.)

"I am yours for everything except to do you harm,"—Mrs. Browning to her husband.

"Too useful to be lonely and too busy to be sad,"—Author unknown.

The motto of the lady who always knows somehow.

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by,
The men who are good and the men who are bad
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Nor hurl the cynic's ban,
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be the friend of man,"—Sam Walter Foss.

"Whereupon, Oh King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision,"—St. Paul.

These are quoted from memory, so I trust you will pardon any inaccuracies and will join us round the fire with your favorite quotation.

Questions and Answers.

Question.—Do you think it fair for my father to expect me to give him part of my earnings? I am eighteen years old, I live at home, and earn six dollars a week.—F. L. R.

Reply.—That depends on whether your father needs your help. If he does I shouldn't think you'd wait for him to "expect" it. Most fathers have a hard enough time making their salaries cover all household needs until their children grow up without continuing to feed and house them free after they are earning money, so that they may have all their earnings for personal luxuries. If he needs it pitch in and help and be glad you can. Of course you can't give much but every little helps. If he doesn't need it that's quite another matter.

Question.—D. F. W. asks, "Do you think I could use a prescription a doctor gave my sister for headaches. I have had severe headaches recently and she suggests I use her remedy, so seems to me, however, that I have been exchanging of prescriptions advised against."

Reply.—It is more than possible that your headache springs from quite a different source from your sister's. Her medicine might not help you and might even harm you. See a doctor by all means.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is there anything wrong in a joint deed, especially where a man and wife have lived together for thirty years and don't come out of it any worse than when they went in? You think that if a man cares anything for his wife, who has been his helpmate for that length of time, raising a family of six, having very little head at all, and though he has his own business, he would consent to a joint deed? I don't think so. I don't think a man who has been married for thirty years and has a family of six, and who has been his helpmate for that length of time, raising a family of six, having very little head at all, and though he has his own business, he would consent to a joint deed? I don't think so. I don't think a man who has been married for thirty years and has a family of six, and who has been his helpmate for that length of time, raising a family of six, having very little head at all, and though he has his own business, he would consent to a joint deed? I don't think so.

DISCOURAGED.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am sixteen and quite large for my age. Do you think that I am too young to have boy friends?

(2) You are about the age when girls start to have boy friends.

(3) It is all right to go now and then, but do not go too often.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What would you think of a young man who took a girl out driving once, the girl not liking his ways refused to go again? Then this man told everyone that other boys and girls usually a boy sits out the intermission with his last partner.

GLIMPSES OF MARRIED LIFE

By Mrs. Eva Leonard

When it was barely light, Nell was awakened by a step on the stairs, and she flashed upon her that her guest was up. She soon heard her husband's mother, Mrs. Vigor, bustling about the house, and she was startled to find a broom in the living room.

"Well, I guess she won't stay long," she thought, "but Dick was asleep and she dared to face the old lady alone. Soon she heard her pouring water and a clanging of a wash tub. "She must be cleaning and washing and the house, she thought, "settled. Then she flashed on her that she might be washing the floors that had just been varnished.

"Nell slid out of bed and putting on her bathrobe and slippers went out. Madam Morton was on her knees rubbing soap on a cloth preparatory to scouring the new varnish. What should she do?

"Oh! good morning," she called. "You are up early." "Early," snorted the old lady. "It must be six o'clock."

She was just ready to plump the soapy rag on the newly varnished floor.

HELP! LATE FASHION IS THE TROUSERETTE

Pantaleet is Really and Truly Not Only With Us But on us—Spring Style Notes. (By Margaret Mason.)

Do my trousers hang straight, dear? That's the latest cry. You'll hear these Springlike days. As the girls flock by. For they all are wearing 'em. It's the latest hobby. Father's pants will now fit Sue Just as well as Bobby.

New York, March 12.—At last the pantaleet, trouserette or what you will after casting its shadow before and behind, is really and truly not only with us but on us.

Made out of regulation suiting of black and white, check, pin stripes and mixtures, the trouserette is creased, pressed and fashioned after the manner of a mere male's, the most approved and swagger accoutrements to the new tailor made lounge or sack suits offered for the ladies. Oh yes, of course, it is true there is a skirt too that hangs down nearly to the ankle and leaves but a scant three inches at the most of trouser legs exposed to the vulgar gaze. Still the mercer fact that she is conscious of her trousers even if it is a sort of subconsciousness helps her to tend toward the emancipation of the sex and make them feel like regular fellows. Surely the freedom afforded will enable them to take a long step toward the vote.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To Reduce the Gas Bill.

Pin the following suggestions near the gas stove, carefully follow, and then note the gas bill lessening. Remember: "Matches are cheaper than gas."

Never use a large burner when a small one will do.

Remember a small blue flame gives more heat and burns less gas than a high yellow flame.

After the water on the vegetables reaches the boiling point, turn gas down. Slow boiling cooks just as well and takes less gas than fast boiling.

A strip of asbestos pinned around a burner causes the heat to concentrate on the cooking, instead of scattering into the atmosphere.

Place a colander in saucepan where potatoes or other vegetables are boiling. In colander set sauce or appetite containing pudding or any left over vegetable, and use to required for heating "leftovers."

Set gravy to be rewarmed, on top of any boiling vegetable; cover, and it will heat thoroughly.

When having roast, do all the cooking in the oven. Any article that requires boiling will cook just as well in the oven.

A nut can be cooked just as well in a popcorn popper as in an oven.

The burner on top of stove, as well as in the oven, may be extinguished after food is cooked, and still retain enough heat to keep food warm for at least five minutes.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES.

For Chapped Hands.—Two tablespoons glycerin, two tablespoons alcohol.

For Sore Throat.—One teaspoonful elder food is cooled, use as gargle. When giving a sick person an alcohol bath, make a mitten for your hand out of an old bath towel. It will hold the heat better and be better for rubbing purposes.

A mustard plaster mixed with the white of an egg will not leave a blister.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES.

Venetian Stew.—Take one tablespoon each of chopped onion, parsley, flour and Parmesan cheese; a little salt, pepper and ground mace. Spread this between two slices of freshly fried veal steak, leave for a few hours, then stew this meat and stuffing in a pan of water or stock, adding a little hot water or stock and butter. Serve hot.

Lentil Eggs (may be served hot or cold).—Boil six eggs twenty minutes in salted water. Cut in halves lengthwise. Remove yolks and mix with a spoon, mash to a paste and mix with two tablespoons minced sweet red peppers, half grated onion, four tablespoons grated bread crumbs, salt, celery salt and paprika to taste, sufficient olive oil to blend to a cream. Mix well and fill into egg whites. To serve cold, lay on lettuce leaves, cover with boiled dressing and garnish with sliced olives and beets. To serve hot, heat carefully in tomato sauce and serve on buttered toast.

Fuffy and Delicate Fried Cakes.—Measure one cup each of milk and granulated sugar into a rather soft stir till dissolved. Beat three eggs well and stir in. Take two quarts baking powder and sift together. Mix the whole into a rather soft dough, using as little flour in making as possible. Cut into rings and fry in very hot lard. Mixing the milk and sugar together keeps first the dough from soaking grease and avoiding the use of a great deal of flour in working the dough makes the cake puffy and delicate.

Delicious Dessert.—Make a sponge with following recipe: Four eggs beaten light, one teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons flour, to which add 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder and four teaspoons water. Put into floured pan and bake about twenty minutes in hot but slow oven. When cold, split through middle and spread with cream filling of the following recipe: One cup sugar, one heaping teaspoon flour, whip one pint cream, serve on top and sprinkle with chopped nuts and maraschino cherries.

A GLORIFIED SUNDAY ROAST.—Wash a nice roast—veal, pork or beef. Season well with salt and pepper, dredge with flour. Place in roaster.

Cut carrots in shape of fingers and stand up around roast, then place a ring of any vegetables that you like, such as tomatoes, turnips or potatoes, around the carrots.

Cover top of roast with slices of onions.

Add water to come nearly half as high as the roast. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Place in moderate oven and do not uncover till you think meat is tender.

TIGHTEN MARRIAGE BONDS TO PREVENT DIVORCE.

Philadelphia, March 12.—That separation with mutual consent is not sufficient ground for granting a decree of divorce, was the contention of Judge M. Patterson, in dismissing a libel in divorce here recently. Judge Patterson declared bonds of matrimony would not be dissolved by law unless there is positive proof of the grounds on which such actions are based.

"Separation is not necessarily dissolution," defined Judge Patterson.

FOR LITTLE FOLK

THE ILLNESS OF CLARENCE CRAB.

For days and days young Clarence Crab, who lived down by the sea, had been as disagreeable as any Crab could be. It's true that at the best of times his temper was a trial. But everyone agreed it had been worse for quite a while.

At last his patient mother said, "I'm really at a loss to understand why you are so particularly cross. I do not think that you can be real well, my dear. I feel that I had better send at once for good old Doctor Eel."

And although Clarence kicked and screamed, it did not go to all; his mother sent for Doctor Eel, who came at once to call. Said he, "I got here just in time; stick out your tongue, my lad. There's something wrong with any child whose temper is so bad."

"And now I'll have to feel your pulse," said Doctor Eel. "Be quick!" Then all at once young Clarence Crab played a disgraceful trick. For with his claw he gave the Eel a really fearful nip. The good old doctor cried in pain, "This child has got the grip!"

"He'll have to go to bed and stay, how long no one can tell; Give him these bitter pills until he dies or gets well; And eating will be bad for him because he is so cross. The only thing that he can have is thin crab-apple sauce."

Said Mrs. Crab, "I cannot tell how bad this makes me feel; I'm suffering from it more than you," said good old Doctor Eel. So Clarence Crab was put to bed without another word. Where he may still be to this day, for all I've ever heard.

But whether he is still in bed, or whether he is out, He's sorry now that he was cross, I really have no doubt; It got him into trouble and it didn't help a bit. So next time you and I feel cross, let's just get over it.

Freckle-Face

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle face? Simply get an ounce of ointment, double strength, from the Badger Drug Co., and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds in February and March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more ointment is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

AN ALFALFA BORDER AROUND EVERY FARM

American Farmer Should Make Use of Alfalfa Soil During War Time.
—Grow Alfalfa.
(By Allen B. West.)

With the farmers of Europe turning their "plowshares into swords" and their farms into battle fields, it is up to grow an American farmer to make use of every inch of soil to help to feed the world.

With the prevailing high prices he will be sure of profitable return for all his efforts.

And if we but stop to think of it we will find there is a great deal of waste space on every farm that might be made productive.

When land could be had for the law price that prevailed when the country was new there was not the necessity for making every rod count and farms and roads were laid out with wide borders.

Now that land is from $100 to $200 per acre, every acre should produce something of value or the farm will run behind as a business proposition.

The National Alfalfa Journal calls attention to the fact that alfalfa is one of the most profitable crops that can be raised on a farm.

Usually the case. Some farms have as many as six acres in practically waste space in their borders, others not so much, depending upon the size of the farm.

Acres bordering upon the public highway. No doubt most farmers who have not stopped to consider it could be surprised when they come to realize the amount of money their farms that is producing no crop.

The Alfalfa Journal says, "There is always a waste space in turning which does not give the farmer returns but the curse of weeds. This space may be plowed up, enriched with manure, cropped for two years, and put into alfalfa which one may have for number of years.

The fertility of the border may be kept up by manuring in the late fall and winter.

Cropping the weeds down in the borders about the farm is one of the tasks of the careful farmer, and a very important one, for if allowed to go to seed they infect all the adjoining land.

An alfalfa border will care for the weeds for its frequent cutting, will not only prevent the maturing of the seeds but will kill the weeds. It is also a source of income for the farmer who never raised alfalfa to start with a large acreage and but rather to put in a small plot until he learns its needs under the conditions prevalent on his farm.

The crop studied there. The Alfalfa Journal presents some figures that sound convincing and are certainly worth considering.

The average yield of alfalfa for the United States is 2 1/2 tons per acre. Alfalfa selling at $12.00 per ton would give a gross profit of $30.00 per acre, or $180.00 per acre of every quarter section of land.

The average yield of alfalfa in Rock County is more than 2 1/2 tons per acre and it often sells for more than $12.00 per ton.

More than that fed on the farm, however taking those figures as a basis it will be seen that an alfalfa border will in most cases pay for itself.

The Alfalfa Journal quotes the following from Ex. Gov. Hoar: "No one more literally abets the growth of two blades of wheat than I do."

Who who effectively urges the growing of alfalfa upon those who are strangers to it, and no one is more truly working for the benefit of agriculture than the basic of alfalfa, than he who proclaims its excellence as the foremost forage."

The alfalfa border is not a thing of the past only. It is a reality on farms of South Dakota. Who will be the first to inaugurate the movement in Rock county?

LIFE-LONG RESIDENT OF MILTON IS DEAD

Joseph Goodrich Carr, One of First White Children Born in Milton, Dies of Pneumonia.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Milton, March 12.—Joseph Goodrich Carr died yesterday afternoon of pneumonia, after an illness of but a few days. Mr. Carr's parents were pioneers in this township and he was born in 1840, being one of the first white children born in Milton.

He had a large acquaintance in the country and was highly esteemed. At the time of his death he was president of the local Building & Loan association and connected with the Bank of Milton.

He was a member of the S. D. B. church and of the I. O. O. F. Since selling his farm, south of Milton Junction, several years ago, deceased had made this village his home, where he was always ready to do his share in the upbuilding and betterment of the place.

As a faithful friend and neighbor he will be greatly missed in the community. He was a wife, two sons, Joseph of Kingsfisher, Oklahoma, Fred of Milton Junction, and two daughters, Mrs. J. R. Hinman of Dundee, Illinois, and Mrs. F. H. Campbell of this place. His funeral arrangements have not been completed at the time we write.

Milton Junction, March 11.—The South Side Embroidery club took their supper and went to Koshkong yesterday to help Mrs. Agnes Stockman celebrate her birthday anniversary.

E. Goodrich has returned from Delavan.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erving Klitzke is very ill.

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

CLEANS THE LITTLE LIVER AND BOWELS AND THEY GET WELL QUICK

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Two new members were also enrolled. New members always welcome. Everybody cordially invited to all services. Bring your envelopes.

11. 1-5. March 14, 1915.
SAUL GAINS HIS KINGDOM.
(The Story.)

The induction of Saul into the kingdom of Israel is a story of which is so absorbingly interesting. The ruddy country lad seeking the lost asses finds a crown and tumbles onto a throne. Overwhelmed by the unexpected scepter, he hides the impedimenta of the camp. It is Saul, prophet and patriot, who shores up the young king-elect's confidence. He is the one who from the homely tasks of the farm to the great affairs of state. He assures him of the divine election and the centering of the people's confidence in him. He spends a night with him on the house-top, fanning
the flame of patriotism in his heart
by such a message as could only fall from a prophet's lips, and ends
all by anointing him and calling him king. But the mere passive reception of the symbols of office, to be saluted with the official title, amounts to little. The incumbent must soon or late prove himself fit.
The opportunity came like a flash to Saul. Of the horrid terms submitted to a brave garrison, the proposed putting out of the great city of each surpasses all. On the instant the king-elect heard of it, he knew why he was king! To meet a situation like that, to save his country from a foul reproach, and his countrymen from such suffering, he called to immediate action his undreamedof powers. Again the messenger found him in the midst of a rude task. But it was not the was ever to perform. A divine and patriotic frenzy took possession of him that made him oblivious of everything save only his country's deliverance. By a signal and he called all Israel to the colors.
A thousand years before Napoleon
he practiced the Corsican's tactics.
Moving with incredible celerity from opposite directions at an unexpected hour, he struck the enemy a withering blow, recovery from which was impossible, and continued the pursuit until in the laconic words of the narrative no two of them were left together. It was in the flushed hour of victory that a new trait, namely, magnanimity, shone like a jewel in the young king's crown.
There had been some mischievous recalcitrants who had disdained Saul, saying, "Shall such one as he rule over us?" The king's first decree was truly royal. There shall not a man be put to death!

The Teacher's Lantern.
All the elements of immortal valor were lying dormant in Saul. What was needed was only the occasion to awaken them. It is hard to recognize the homely tasks of life as a challenge to genuine heroism. But it is there. For one who gets such a call as Saul had there are a thousand million who will never get a higher summons than that which comes directly from the divine or human need environment. Obedience to such call is knightly in sight of God.
There is an afflatus true and an afflatus false. There are still those who feel themselves "called of God" whose end does not justify their contention.
But strewn down the course of time there have been those self-oblivious heroes possessed of a real divine passion, who have consciously or unconsciously met historic crises and contributed immeasurably to human weal.
The "Spirit of the Lord has rushed upon" them as it did upon Saul.
A sign is often more effective than a spoken word. The bleeding fragments of the butchered bullocks carried to every part of Israel aroused the public mind and conscience as nothing else could possibly have done.
That presumptuous summons was an audacious act for a youth who a short time before had sought to elude notice by hiding himself in the camp luggage. Saul was distinctly in advance of his age in his generous anxiety to his political enemies.
It reminds one of the legend of a certain king who averred that he intended to kill his enemies. But he kept his apparent sanguinary promise by making his enemies his friends. Mercy in a king is more becoming than his crown.
Samuel, Saul, David
make an illustrious trio of which any nation might well be proud. Samuel in his person concluding superbly a unique office of incalculable value to the nation in a primitive age; Saul first of the new order of kings, a warrior of dauntless courage and great strategic skill; David destined to carry his nation to the zenith of power and prepare the way for Solomon's splendor. A genesis of whatever kind it is has a unique interest from the very fact that it is a genesis. Saul was the genesis of kingship in Israel.
So the circumstances of his call, the conditions of his environment have more than the interest that would attach to the individual. How came this inauguration of monarchy? What conditions made it possible or desirable? Paradoxical in the face of the most gigantic war of history,
yet the soldier as the symbol of power, the surely passing. The war will hasten its end. Yet there will be an increasing demand for the moral qualities which inhere in good sol-diership. It is not that the power of fight has perished; it is that the savage has gone up on higher ground.
John Ruskin in "The Crown of Wild Olive"
justifies war in that it creates admirable qualities. But the question rises whether there is not other means by which these same qualities may be fostered. Philippe Brooks affirms that the military spirit will some day seem only the crude rehearsal for that higher fight which is the richer glory

Practical Prescription Against Stomach Acidity

Nine-tenths of all cases of stomach trouble nowadays are caused by too much acid in the stomach. The stomach itself is not diseased. But if this acid condition is allowed to continue, the acid is very likely to eat into the stomach walls and produce stomach ulcers, which may require a radical surgical operation necessary even to prolong life. Therefore, an "acid cure" is really a dangerous condition.
and should be treated seriously. It is ultimately useless to take peppin and ordinary stomach tablets. The excess acid or stomach acidity must be neutralized by the administration of an efficient antacid.
For this purpose the best remedy is bisulfate of magnesia taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal. Larger quantities may be used if necessary as it is absolutely harmless. It neutralizes the excess acid, and thereby effectively washes them away, but they have no action on the stomach as blue-mesh like that. There is still the law of test to which everything is subject. It is society's safeguard.

Were it not for this sieve, each and state would be submerged with a mississippi flood of charlatans and char-latanry. In the normal operation of

ARE ALLOWED TIME TO PAY THE COURT

Two Out-of-Town Drunks Given Until First Pay Day to Make Good Small Fines.

Alfred Arndt of Milwaukee, and Bernard Lavery of Footville, were given an opportunity of showing their honesty by Judge H. L. Maxfield this morning when the two men had been hauled into court for being intoxicated last night. They were given nominal fines and allowed to go free until they sent the money back to the court on pay day.
Lavery yesterday afternoon ordered a sandwich at the Chicago & Northwestern railroad station, after finishing the viand he started to search for a lone dollar bill that he had on his person. The more he searched—the more excited he got.
The counter keeper called the department and Patrolman Harry Smith called Lavery. In the cell the Foot-ville man yelled and hooted the greater part of the night and morning for an "extra large order of ham and eggs—well done." Instead this morning he got punk and coffee and a fine two dollars and costs. Lavery, when called, managed to find the dollar bill tucked in one corner of the overcoat pocket and the findings of the bill probably saved him from being a victim of a hard fate.
Arndt showed his calloused hands to the court and Judge Maxfield was convinced that he was a laboring man and not a vagrant. Arndt was allowed to leave the court to take a job on the farm and was directed to send back a two dollar fine and costs, amounting to three dollars, on the first pay day.

RENO LONGS FOR RETURN OF PROSPERITY AND EASY DIVORCE; SOME NOTABLE PERSONAGES IN PAST GAINED FREEDOM THERE

Top, left to right: Mrs. Margaret Emerson McKim; Mrs. Margaret Illington and Mrs. Henry East. They were photographed at Palm Beach. Bottom, Enda Goodrich: These women secured divorces at Reno.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Reno, Nev., Feb. 24.—Prosperous times are in sight for Reno again,
for the legislature has passed the bill
restoring the old "easy" divorce law,
and business men are preparing to entertain as of yore wealthy visitors who are willing to spend six gay months in Reno for the sake of freedom from marriage bonds.
It was little more than a year ago that another law put Reno out of the divorce business, and the once gay and prosperous city is just beginning to feel the real sting of the blow.
That law extended the period of required residence in the state for divorce from six months to a year.
Divorces are as easy to get as ever in Nevada under the new law, but it's such a wearisome wait. And eastern visitors in a hurry for marital freedom don't like to wait.

Time was when one could spend six breezy months in Reno and scarcely count the days. There were mountain trails to explore, horseback or afoot, there were mountain trout streams to explore with rod and reel. The hotels were good; the restaurants were even better.
There was a big town theatre where on occasion one could see real stage notables, dropped in for a night to break the tedium of the long jump from Chicago to San Francisco and to pick up several thousand dollars at a seat. There were taxicabs and trolley cars and fashionable shops and a big university, to say nothing of very lovely society.
But ah, how different now. To be sure, the mountain trails and the mountain streams are still there. The trolley cars are there, and the taxicabs are there. But the trolley cars don't run as often as they used to,
and the taxicabs linger lonesomely around on naked corners, while their drivers stare with retrospective eyes
at cafe doors that once upon a time

TO HAVE COMMISSION TO RUN WATER WORKS

New Ordinance Provides That Water Works Be Run Distinctly Separate From City Affairs.

Under the provisions of the new ordinance now being drafted by City Attorney William H. Dougherty, for the adopting of charter laws and establishing a governing body for the operation of the water works, the city attorney will be added to the board of public works, and this body will act as a water commission. The new legislation may be completed in time to be given its first and second reading at the council meeting this afternoon.
The sections of the proposed ordinance allows that the water commission, which shall consist of the mayor, two councilmen, city engineer and city attorney, shall determine the policy of the running of the water works, audit bills for labor and purchase supplies and in general have full power to conduct the business of the concern. The commission will run the plant entirely separate from the city government from a water fund, which will not be merged or confused with any of the city appropriations or funds. All bills, after being audited by the commission, will be paid by vouchers on the water fund and the commissioners are to carry over the government a sandwich in all ways from city affairs, thereby eliminating waterworks appropriations which will be listed on the tax levy.
Sections of the general charter will be adopted in the ordinance, which will give the proposed commission jurisdiction to lay assessments on property owners for the laying and extension of water mains.
Besides the considering of the ordinance, the council will have minor municipal affairs to act upon. The committee of the Civic Council, a municipal betterment organization, will confer with the council this afternoon on the improvement of the Corn Exchange and North Franklin street.

STATE PAROLE OFFICERS AT THE COUNTY JAIL

R. M. Jostead, parole agent working under the state board of control, was at the county jail this morning making arrangements for the placing of prisoners sentenced under the board of control by Municipal Judge H. L. Maxfield recently. The prisoners will be paroled out the first of next week.
Ben Dixon will be taken to northern Wisconsin to serve his year's suspended sentence. Virgil Baker, the fifteen year old boy placed under the state officers for a year, will be allowed to remain at the Cronin farm, in this city. Andrew Johnson and Roy McKinney are also to be placed out by Jostead early next week.
This afternoon F. Jacobson of Chicago, who received fifteen days for being drunk and disorderly, will have a taste of the simple life on a farm near Avalon. Jacobson was unable to pay his fine and will be paroled
out by Turnkey Wogan. Iver Silvik, the young Norwegian who was fined two hundred dollars for a statutory offense, is still at the county jail, the fine not having been paid. In default he will have to serve a six months' commitment law sentence.

SAYS EUGENICS LAW IS MAKING LIARS OUT OF PHYSICIANS

Milwaukee Doctor Argues for Its Repeal at Committee Hearing—
Friends of Act Emphatic
In Praise.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 12.—Senator
J. H. Bennett, Vilroque, and Dr. Hon-ace Manchester Brown, Milwaukee, pronounced the eugenics marriage
law silly and absurd making liars lawfully and perjurors out of physicians, and perjurors out of physicians, and Mrs. G. A. Hipke, president of the Milwaukee Maternity hospital, declared it has accomplished wonders, both in actually preventing marriage of the unfit and in an educational bill repealing the law, at the hearing before the senate committee on education and public welfare. G. P.
Turner, Madison student and Methodist lay preacher, described the test
as administered to him by a Madison physician and declared any respectable physician can give a competent examination and not make of himself a liar or perjurer. He said the best thing about it is the publicity which attends law immoral.

"I am not opposed to this law to destroy anything believed to be of public benefit," said Dr. Brown, who has long been an ardent opponent of such legislation. "But this law seems to be the offspring of a peculiar mania that has passed over this country that men may be made more moral by law and in each particular function of life can be modified by a group of men sitting together
at the capitals of the various states, determining the moral of the citizen
in a civilized life by that means."
"This 'eugenics' law is immoral, because it forces upon a respectable body of men the responsibility for the marriage relation making the medical profession the arbiters of the right of man to wed. For after all said and done, medical men are essentially human. The law is immoral because it encourages the most outrageous form of quackery among medical men. No one who puts his name on such a permit without asking the state board of control to be a liar and perjurer under this law.
It means an absurd and unmeasurable amount of work to make such an examination, and then after one to three months it would not be determinative. Men by the hundreds throughout the state have become liars and perjurors by registering couple as competent to marry after only a ten minute examination."

Ten Minute Examinations.
Dr. Brown told of a Milwaukee bridegroom who secured a certificate
after a ten minutes' "examination" by a physician, and said this is the way the law has worked from the beginning. He maintained the law makes the judges of the bench decide medical questions which they are not by profession competent to do. It would be a matter of charity, he said, to relieve the supreme court from considering such questions. He said the law is vicious, that it makes criminals of the doctors, makes couples competent to marry who are not, and drives them out of the state to wed, encourages degeneracy, is "stupid,"

unconstitutional, despite the supreme court's mandate otherwise, is "silly, absurd and impossible of administration," and has not one shadow of respectability upon which to stand."
Senator Bennett described the law as one designed to get American citizens into jail. He quoted extensively from the dissenting opinion of Justices Marshall and Vinie in the Petersen-Widule case, that marriage is a "natural right" with which this law "destructively interferes, and declared any prospective husband or wife is competent to protect himself or herself by examination before marriage. He also quoted Justice Timlin as saying that the law tends to discourage marriage and not to prevent spread of venereal disease. He said marriages have fallen off by 4,000 and that illegitimate births have increased, both in part due to this law. Senator Bennett agreed with Mrs. Hipke that the law should apply to both sexes.
Mrs. Hipke agreed with Dr. Brown that it is almost impossible to put the Wasserman test requirement on the statute because most physicians are not able to administer the test.

Health Tests Needed.
"I come here," she said, "as a mother and as a woman interested in the protection of the home and family. What is there wrong about making health tests? A physician cannot make a positive test, by microscopic examination, for one of the two worst venereal diseases,
is not fit to deserve the title of doctor. It is common sense to insist upon a simple health test. It may prevent some marriages. The diseases mentioned have been the cause of many divorces. I believe ultimately all states will enact such laws as this."

Mrs. Hipke stated that the signed affirmation of freedom from disease made by both parties amounts to nothing, and told why. She said it is not fair to apply the test to men only.

JANESVILLE OFFICIALS HAVE INVITATIONS TO ATTEND FRISCO MEETING

Mayor Jas. A. Fathers this morning received an invitation from B.
S. Steadwell, president of the World's Purity Federation, to attend or to appoint delegates to the congress to be held by the organization at San Francisco from July 18 to the 24th.
The purpose of the Purity Federation's ninth international congress is for the consideration of the social evil, civil and moral welfare questions.

The congress is expected to be the greatest gathering for the remedying of the threatening evil and their actions promise to become potent factors in bringing about a clearing for a single standard of moral cities, pure social relations. The exposition convention auditorium has been reserved for the meeting and world famous reformers, educators, physicians and religious workers
will take part in the program.

Woman's Health Requires Care

Women are so constituted as to be peculiarly susceptible to constipation, and their general health depends in large measure on careful regulation and correction of this tendency. Their delicate organisms rebel at the violence of cathartic and purgative remedies, which,
while they may afford temporary relief, shock the system and seriously disturb and functional organs. A mild laxative is far preferable and, if properly compounded, much more effective.
The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Cal-well's Syrup Pepsin, is ideal for women's use. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr.
W. B. Caldwell, 462 Washington
St., Monticello, Ill.

THE BOY FARMER

Or a Member of the Corn Club
By ASA PATRICK

Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.

"When are you going to leave?" Sam asked.

"Well, I'm about ready now," replied the neighbor. "There's one thing I "Look, Florence! Sam is sure a wonder."

ain't arranged yet, though, and it's kinder bothering me. I've got a fine registered sow, and she's going to find a litter of pigs some of these days before long. I'd sell her, but I can't get nothing like what she's worth, and I can't find a place to leave her."

"I'd like to get some Berkshire pigs," Sam remarked. "What do you ask for the sow?"

"Well, right this minute I'd take $20 for her. The pigs are sure to be worth twice that much."

"That's cheap enough," said Sam. "But I haven't the money. How would it suit you to let me keep her? That little pasture down there is hog proof. The creek runs through it, and there's plenty of shade and water and no stock that would bother her."

"That's a good place. I hadn't thought of it. Maybe we can make a deal. I'll tell you what I'll do, Sam. You keep the sow and look after her, and when the pigs are old enough you ship four of them to me and you may have the sow and the rest of the pigs."

"I'll do it," said Sam, and the bargain was closed.

About a month later the old sow was going about the pasture with ten pretty black and white faced pigs following. Under Sam's care they grew like weeds in wet weather. When they were old enough to wean, which was twelve weeks, as the young farmer learned from his reading, he shipped the four pigs to their owner. Of the six pigs left he picked out three of the finest, two girls and a male, to keep. The other three he advertised for sale in the county paper, and the pigs being of good stock, he had no trouble in selling them for $10 each. One buyer, coming after they had been sold, tried to get Sam to put a price on the three he had saved. But the boy refused to sell. Indeed, he was so proud of his pigs that an offer of many times their worth would not have induced him to part with them. And in this he showed that he was wise.

But, proud as Sam Powell was of his thoroughbreds, there was something else to which he was giving a lot of thought and work. That something was the acre of corn that was to compete for prizes offered to the Boys' Corn club.

Miles Fagan had promised his son, Bob, that he might join the corn club and enter an acre in the contest if he would clear the land of stumps. Bob did join, but the corn was not planted this year. For after working with grubbing hoe and ax from sunup till sundown for many days, clearing the acre of the big, deep rooted stumps, Mr. Fagan told him unconcernedly that he'd just have to have that patch of ground. If Bob still wanted to plant some corn he'd have to clear another acre.

It was a cruel, mean trick to play on a boy and enough to discourage anybody, but Bob set to work on another acre. It was too late, however, to plant the corn when he had finished it, and he had to drop out of the contest for this year.

But Miles Fagan was beginning to learn that he didn't know very much about growing corn. The patch across the fence from his was teaching him something.

Sam planted his contest acre with the seed furnished by the agent about the middle of March. The rows were four feet apart and the stalks in the rows eighteen inches. He cultivated it the first time when the corn was just beginning to come up by going over it with a harrow. This did not hurt the plants, except one here and there, and it killed all the little weeds and grass that were just starting. How that corn did grow! It sprang up almost like mushrooms. It seemed to Sam that the dark green stalks fairly laughed in the loose ground that he had made so rich with manure and ashes.

The young farmer cultivated the ground level and never allowed a weed to take root on that acre. He pulled the suckers whenever they appeared and went over it once with a hoe, but most of the work was done with a plow. The first time or two he plowed it tolerably deep, but as the corn grew larger and the little roots began to run out across the middle he plowed very shallow to keep from cutting the roots and injuring the corn. But there was another reason for shallow plowing. Deep plowing in summer causes the soil to lose moisture when the crop needs it most.

Sam stirred the top of the ground till there was a layer of dust to hold the moisture below. He wanted to keep all the water he could for the growing corn, and he knew that the sun can draw water up through a crust in a hurry, but can't draw it through a layer of dust—or much, as it is called. He kept the soil this way. He never plowed when it was too wet, for that makes clods. But after rains, as soon as it was dry enough, or when weeds began to appear he went over the patch with plow or harrow and stirred the surface till it was all broken up and loose.

Bill Googe and Miles Fagan had quit laughing at Sam. They and others in the neighborhood often stopped in passing and looked at the corn and wondered.

"I reckon it's jes' an accident," Bill remarked to Mr. Fagan one day, "but that boy's kinder got one on us, Miles. I told 'im before he come out here that he couldn't grow peas on that ground. But dog my cats, if that ain't as fine corn as I ever saw. That acre patch is better than the rest, but I tell you they ain't none o' his crops to be sneezed at."

"I don't exactly understand it," Miles Fagan replied, "but jes' between you and me, Bill, I guess they must be something in the government's way o' doin' things. You know that kid don't know nothin' about farmin' except what the agents told 'im. But look at that acre of corn and then look at mine across the fence. And it ain't in the land. I know that. This land o' mine, if anything, is better than his. Of course it's bound to be in the fertilizer he's usin' and the way he's cultivatin' the ground."

The comparison suggested by Mr. Fagan was enough to make any one stop and think. Sam's corn was nearly waist high and had big stalks, while that of his neighbor in the field across the fence was no more than two feet high and the stalks were spindling.

But Fagan understood the cause of the difference in the two crops a good deal better after Mr. Burns happened along one day a little later and stopped to talk to him and Sam, who were working in their respective fields.

"Hello, Mr. Fagan!" the government agent called out as he rode up. "How is it your corn is behind Sam's here?"

Fagan grinned. "It's because he planted earlier," he said.

"How much earlier?"

"Two or three days," replied the farmer.

Mr. Burns laughed. "That won't do, Mr. Fagan," he said. "Two or three days' difference in planting would make hardly any difference in corn."

At this point Bill Googe, who had been plowing near by, came up and

"Well, there you have it in a nutshell."

stood listening. Bill was working better this year under the example and influence of Sam.

"Well, I don't know what else could 'a' made the difference in my corn and his," Mr. Fagan replied, "if it wasn't the plantin'." "I think I know," said Mr. Burns. "How deep did you break your land?" "Bout four inches." "How deep did you break yours, Sam?" "About a foot, wasn't it, Bill?" Sam asked in turn.

"Well, it wouldn't miss it much," affirmed Bill. "That old plow was up to the beam."

"How many times did you harrow your corn, Mr. Fagan?" continued the agent.

"I never harrow corn."

"How many times did you harrow yours, Sam?"

"Twice."

"How many times have you plowed your corn, Mr. Fagan?"

"Twice."

"How many times have you plowed yours, Sam?"

"Four."

"Well, there you have it in a nutshell," said Mr. Burns. "You broke shallow, Mr. Fagan, didn't harrow and plowed twice. Sam broke deep, harrowed twice and plowed four times. Furthermore, you'll plow yours only once more. Sam'll plow his two or three times more. That's what makes the difference in the corn. That's why he'll gather a whole lot more to the acre than you."

"That's right, Miles," said Bill Googe. "He's tellin' it straight. It can't be no other way. I been seelin' it for some time, and I'm changin' my way. We been layin' by crops when they warn't more'n half made. I didn't more'n scratch my land to begin with, but you bet I'm plowin' shallow and lots of it. Sam don't know it, but I been watchin' him and I'm givin' my crops the same medicine he does."

"Yes, there's something in your way of farmin'," Fagan confessed. "I've been dead wrong, and I'll jes' own up. I've talked pretty cross to you once or twice, Mr. Burns, and I want to apologize for it. I was a numskull to act that way. Next year I'm goin' to follow your advice, and I want my boy to line the corn club and learn as much as he can. I treated him mean this year, and I'm sorry I do so."

"That's all right, Mr. Fagan," said the agent. "I'm real glad you see things my way, for I want to help every farmer in this community. That's all I'm here for, in fact."

CHAPTER V.

THE spring and summer—in fact, the whole year was a very busy one for Sam. And it was not less so for Florence and Mrs. Powell. Florence often helped her brother when the work crowded, and Mrs. Powell put in all her spare time in the garden, melon patch and orchard.

On the contest acre Sam was forced to do all the work himself. The rules were strict on this point, and after Sam's patch had been laid off and measured by a committee he himself planted the corn and no one else struck a lick in its cultivation.

Sam's first planting was the Irish potatoes. He bedded up an acre, dragged down the beds almost flat and planted them early in March. Next came the contest acre, and when that was finished he planted four more acres in corn, making five in all, then turned to the cotton.

Next came the cane, and Sam sowed this broadcast and very thick, for he wanted to make hay of it. If the stalks grow large and stiff it doesn't make good hay.

The young farmer wound up the first round of planting by sowing the orchard in rye. His idea was to let no bit of ground lie idle, but to keep something growing on it instead of weeds.

The weed problem was a pretty hard one for Sam, so many had gone to seed on the place. But he determined that not one should make seed this year. So he was the busiest farmer in the whole community. He plowed and hoed constantly, but it was mostly plowing, for Sam soon learned that hoeing is a mighty slow way to kill weeds and grass compared with plowing.

People passing along by the Powell place marveled at the clean, well cultivated little farm. But Sam considered other needs of the crops besides cultivation.

The soil of the place was not nearly so poor as the neighbors had said it was—not even so poor as Sam had thought. The trouble was that the surface of the ground had merely been scratched, and he had remedied this by thorough cultivation. Still the crops lacked something, and he found that each acre had certain qualities. As he studied the farm he began to see that each bit of land was strong in certain ways and weak in others.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

OUCH! BACHACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

RUB PAIN FROM BACK WITH SMALL TRIAL BOTTLE OF OLD "ST. JACOB'S OIL."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

CARNEGIE CONTROLS WISCONSIN SCHOOLS

Statement by Assemblyman McGowan is Spark That Started Fire-works on School Inspection Bill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 12.—"Andrew Carnegie, a man who spends most of his time in Scotland, determines what schools shall go on the accredited list in Wisconsin."

This statement by Assemblyman F. L. McGowan of Adams county was a spark that kindled some fire-works before the assembly yesterday afternoon.

"Can you offer proof that Wisconsin schools are controlled by Carnegie?" interrupted Assemblyman Kent of Milwaukee.

"Ask Henry Trottmann, Milwaukee, he will give you the information," continued Mr. McGowan.

Arguments were being held on a bill which would prohibit the university from inspecting the high schools of the state. Superintendent C. P. Cary supported in favor of the bill. He said that the law and the constitution clothed the superintendent of public instruction could not hope to the schools of the state; that university inspection was a duplication and a needless expense. The bill was attacked by President Van Hise of the university, who showed the necessity of having schools maintain a certain standard.

Buckstaff of Oshkosh, made the principal argument against the bill. He said that this inspection work could be done cheaply by the university and that the state superintendent of public instruction could not hope to have on his staff men, as the university has, skilled in so many scientific education lines. He said that the question had come before the board of university regents many times and at no times was there more than fifteen or sometimes two votes out of fifteen who favored abandoning university inspection. Several city and county superintendents present testified before the committee of the aid to school and help given by the university inspection.

Superintendent Cary said that there was nothing in the law that said the university must dominate the state and go into competition with the state superintendent with the inspection of the schools. He said that about 80 percent of the people who finish the high school go to the university and that percentage was too low to have the university idea in the lower schools predominate.
